Rules Changes

Democrats Battle As Congress Opens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats talked party harmony and girded for intra-mural mayhem today as the 87th Congress buckled down to deal with President-elect John F. Kennedy's liberal legislative program.

Even before the opening gavel fell in the Senate and House at noon, Democrats were embattled over efforts to change congressional rules to smooth the way for some of Kennedy's more controversial proposals.

For the first time in years, there was a serious move in the House to "purge" from a key committee one or more Democratic members who bolted the party's presidential ticket in the November election.

All indications were that once the ceremony and the blood-letting were over, the House and Senate — both firmly under Democratic control — would proceed to enact a good bit of what Kennedy promised, including aid to schools, housing, and distressed areas, an increase in the minimum wage, and, maybe next year, medical care of the aged under the Social Security program.

In the House, Democrats had 262 members to 175 on the Republican side of the aisle. This was a net Democratic loss of 21 seats from last year. The Senate breakdown was 65 Democrats to 35 Republicans, a net Democratic loss of one seat.

As the new Congress assembled, the House scene was familiar with leaders unchanged and no more than the usual parade of new faces.

The Senate, however, was under new management. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas had resigned as Democratic leader and was about to give up his seat to take over his upcoming job as vice president. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana was assuming the Democratic leadership job.

Among the notable absentees in the new Senate lineup was Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, who retired at the record age 93. Kennedy, until last month a senator from Massachusetts, also was missing from the chamber. He will take his oath of office as President Jan. 20.

Auto Passes Over Boy In Snowbank

A Woods Schools student was apparently uninjured yesterday morning when a car passed over him as he played in a snowbank on the school grounds.

Stanford Turkin, 6, was taken to Lower Bucks County Hospital, where he was detained for observation, but Middletown Township police reported that the car, driven by Lee Taylor, 17, 327 Hulmeville Road, Langhorne, apparently passed over the boy without touching him.

The Trevores Heights Rescue Squad took the boy to the hospital. Patrolman Harold Briggs, Middletown Township police officer, made no charges against the driver.

Woods Schools is a private institution in Langhorne.

What do you know? Weather break.

After a few clouds and possibly snow showers today, fair and warmer the rest of the week. That's what the man promises.

And just after we learn the tricks of skidding all over the ice. Without losing a fender and a couple of headlights, that is.

Okay, patience is the word for it. Three months hence the lilacs will be showing.

Eighty-seventh Congress convenes today and we suspect the weeks ahead will be extremely interesting to watch and behold.

Democrats all geared for a battle to prevent roadblocks to President-elect Kennedy's legislative program.

We guess the point is that we don't want curbs on necessary legislation. But while the Kennedy forces are fighting, they might as well remember that the country doesn't want a free-administration ticket to a free-wheeling spending binge.

And the State Legislature also convenes to consider ways, primarily, to give Pennsylvania another bundle of taxes to bail the Lawrence administration out of a growing deficit.

Say, wasn't this Pittsburgh fellow the man who was to provide the Keystone State a real, efficient, economical administration?

Our troubles just never done. You notice that Laos situation becoming increasingly grave as the Commies move in?

This is one Uncle Sam may have to take a hand in and apparently he's preparing for the eventuality. U. S. forces in the Pacific getting ready.

Don't race trains to crossings. If you tie you lose.

Drive carefully, please.

A little Argentine girl who hasn't even started to school yet is alive today because a lot of highly trained adults, both in this country and in South America, got together in an almost unbelievable race against death Sunday — and won.

The race started at about 5 p.m. the day before yesterday when radio engineer Albert Fernandez, 1005 Stephen Ave., Croydon, listening in on his "ham" radio, heard a distress call from Peru.

"We need staphicillin," the call said, "to save the life of a little girl who is dying in Buenos Aires."

Rare Drug

The Peruvian said none of the rare drug was available anywhere in Argentina or in Colombia or in Venezuela. Was it possible to get it in the United States?

Staphicillin is a new drug, extremely hard to obtain, which is used in the treatment of overwhelming infection which can develop in the bodies of ill persons who have become immune to penicillin.

And penicillin immunity had grown in little three-year-old Maria Gianiselli, who lay dying in Ward 17 of the Children's Hospital in Buenos Aires. Staphicillin was the only thing which would save her life.

Aware Of Urgency

Fully aware of the urgency of the problem but not quite sure how to solve it — it was Sunday and a holiday — Fernandez suddenly thought of his friend Dr. Oscar Oliva, who for several years has been a resident physician at Lower Bucks County Hospital. Could there be staphicillin there?

Fernandez contacted Dr. Oliva and told him what was happening. He didn't have to tell him how badly the drug was needed, though; the doctor knew.

Dr. Oliva, who is from Argentina himself, promptly got in touch with Miss Evelyn Rotondo, chief pharmacist at the hospital, who told him there was some of the wonder drug in her pharmacy — some of the little, in fact, that's to be found anywhere in the Lower Bucks area.

Still A Problem

The staphicillin found, the problem still remained of getting it all the way to the dying child's South American bedside. After all, it was needed "right now."

Fernandez solved that problem, too. He got in touch with an operations control officer at the Philadelphia International Airport. The operations officer, who is also a "ham" operator, told Fernandez that if the drug could be gotten to the airport quickly enough, it could be flown to Miami on a south-bound Eastern Air Lines flight which was due to leave shortly. If that flight

Laos Seen 'Grave'

Fight Still Rages

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)

— The pro-Western government announced today that its troops recaptured the vital northeastern outpost of Xieng Khouang from pro-Communist forces last Sunday.

The announcement said fighting was still going on around the town.

There was no immediate word as to the fate of northern Phong Saly Province, which earlier had been reported in Communist hands. The sketchy report of Phong Saly's capture had not been confirmed and was regarded as doubtful.

No details of the military situation could be obtained immediately.

Vote Of Confidence
The National Assembly met in special session to give pro-Western Premier Boua Oum a vote of confidence and probably to endorse Laos' protest against Soviet shipment of arms to Red Guerrillas.

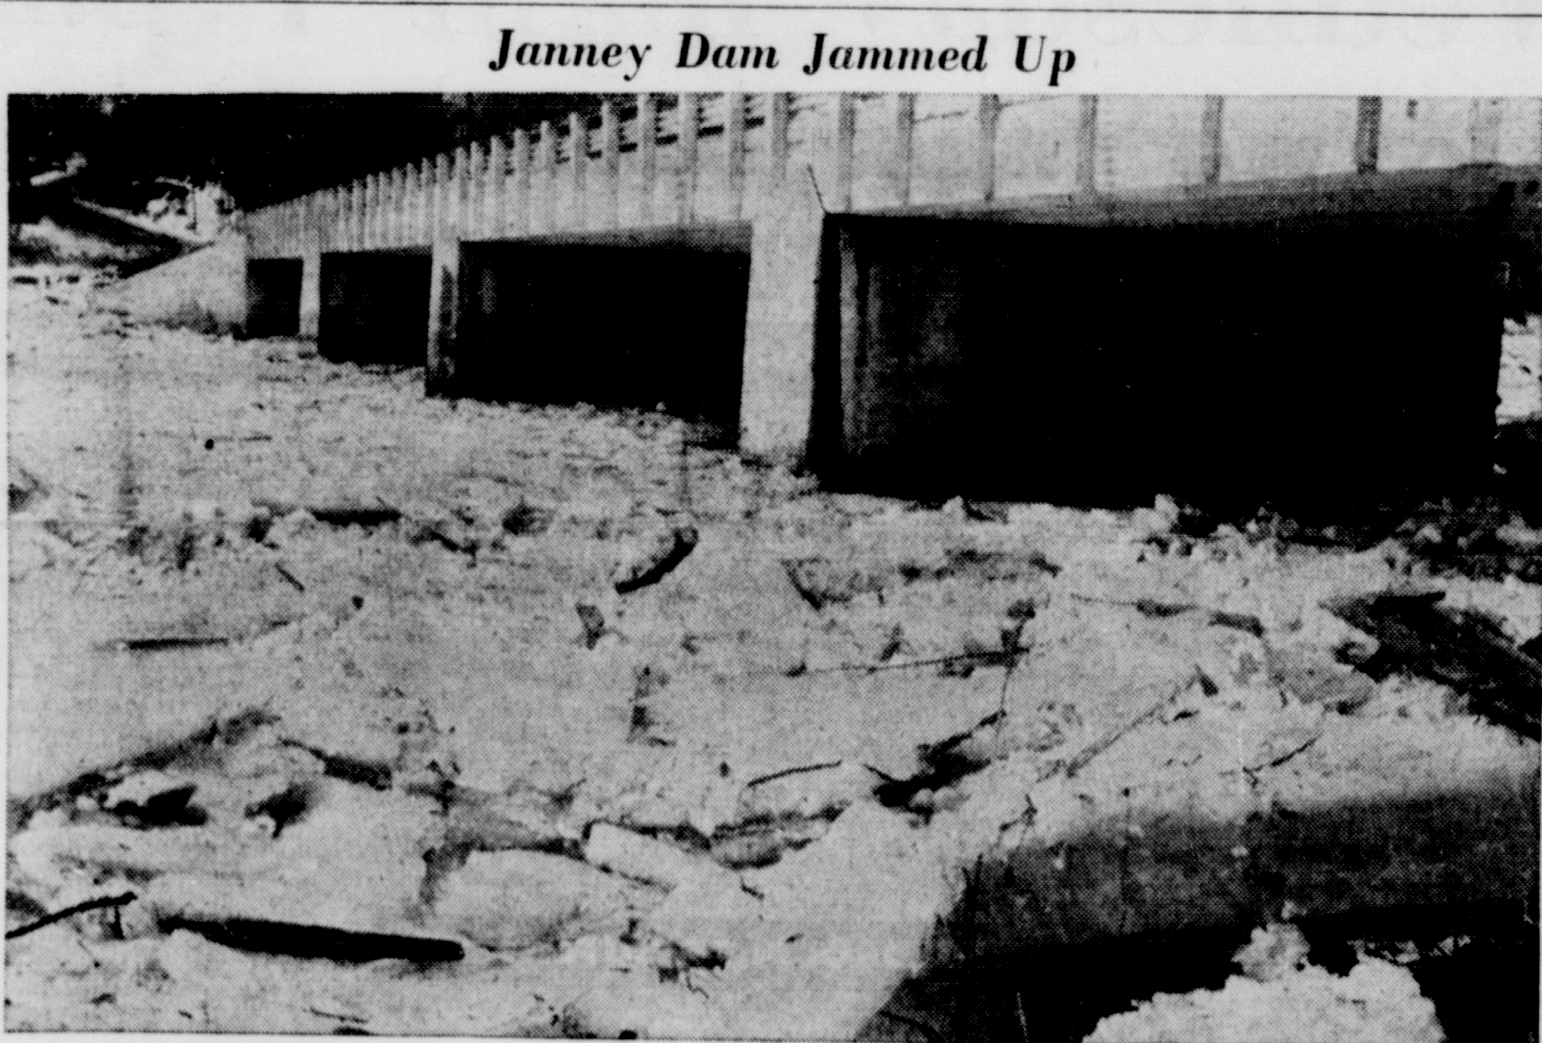

Pro-Communist rebels said today they would regard any armed intervention in Laos by the United Nations "under the United States" as aggression.

The United States already has put military forces in the Pacific on the alert as the result of reports of increasing foreign Communist intervention in the Southeast Asian kingdom. Diplomatic observers said the crisis had reached its "gravest" point.

Report U.N. Protest
The warning was made by the Communist Pathet Lao radio and relayed by the official Chinese Communist New China News Agency.

Russia's official news agency, Tass, reported that the pro-Communist "government" had cabled a warning to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld against "actions in the United Nations by

Janney Dam Jammed Up

The rains Sunday morning caused this massive ice jam near the Brownsville Road bridge, Middletown Township. Neshaminy Creek backed up in several places along its course. One of the worst jams, at the Janney Dam, caused this congestion. Huge chunks of ice were deposited on lawns in Langhorne Terrace and serious flooding threatened in several locations. The waters were rapidly receding today, but the ice is expected to remain unless an extended warm spell is encountered. (Courier-Times Photo)

Fifth Attempt Suspected

Burglars Break Into Four Boro Stores, Make Off With $4,795

Burglars swooped down on Bristol Borough over the long holiday weekend, breaking into four stores and possibly attempting to enter a fifth and making off with $4,795 in cash and $1,300 in checks and money orders.

At the United Drug Store, 229 Mill St., they made their biggest haul, $4,700 in cash and the checks and money orders. They took $60 from a safe at the C. S. Wetherill Lumber Co. office, Green Lane and Farragut Ave., and $35 at the Factors to You furniture store, Mill St. near Pond.

Jimmy Marks Found

They also broke into the Acme Supermarket on Pond St. and attacked the safe but were unable to open it. And at the State Liquor Store on Market St. police found Jimmy Marks as if they had attempted to enter but failed there also.

Chief of Police Vincent A. Faragalli said this morning that he believed the same gang was involved in three of the burglaries, those at the supermarket, the lumber firm and the furniture dealer's.

He said also that he believes this is the same gang that opened two safes in Bristol Township over the Christmas week-end and that he and Lt. Thomas Stewart of the Township police are conferring.

They definitely are professionals, Faragalli stated. However, he said, the methods used at the drug store indicate this gang was not involved in that haul, the most lucrative of the five.

There, he said, no marks of forced entry were found. The safe apparently had been left open and not forced, he said, and a smaller safe which contained an additional $105 was not touched.

In the other burglaries, doors had been jimmied, the combination knobs knocked off and efforts made to drill holes into the lock mechanisms.

Faragalli also said that the drug

Weatherman Foresees Chance Of Flurries

The weatherman forecast the chance of a few snow flurries today with partly cloudy skies remaining through the night and an overnight low in the mid-20's.

High temperature today was predicted in the mid-30's and the same was forecast for tomorrow.

Some clouds will remain over Lower Bucks County throughout tomorrow, the weatherman said.

The high temperature yesterday was 35 at 2 p.m. The low this morning was 32 at 1 o'clock.

Ike, Aides Confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower held another top level conference today on the crisis in Laos and a White House spokesman said the United States believes the situation is "indeed grave."

The President met with high military and diplomatic advisers as informed sources said the United States has gathered information showing outside Communist intervention in Laos is greater than previously known.

Soviet Markings
Intelligence reports indicated planes bearing Soviet markings have dropped hundreds of tons of supplies to Laotian Communists.

The State Department was understood to have new data on the number of Soviet planes involved and on the number of North Vietnamese troops reported to be in the area.

Receives Latest Reports

In his 45-minute meeting with officials at the White House, the President received latest intelligence reports on the fighting in the tiny Asian country.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr., Chairman Lyman L. Lemnitzer of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Central Intelligence Director Allen W. Dulles were among those meeting with the Chief Executive.

Eisenhower approved measures Monday to increase readiness of U. S. military units in the Pacific at a similar high-level meeting.

"The President, of course, is continuing to keep in close touch with the situation," White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen.

It was Hagerty who also said that the situation in Laos was "indeed grave."

While going on a military alert in the Southeast Asia area, the United States continued to search with its allies for a possible diplomatic solution to the Laos action.

U.S. officials declined to say

Neshaminy Creek Water Now Receding

Neshaminy Creek ice jams and following flood waters that moved into Lower Bucks after heavy rains Sunday morning are no longer matters of immediate concern, according to John T. Carson, president of the Neshaminy Valley Watershed Authority.

The ice jams will remain, perhaps until spring, Carson said, but the water level along the 20-mile stretch from Doylestown downstream to below Janney is receding. The situation could rapidly worsen if additional rain falls, Carson warned.

Ice jams remained at three

Bucks Will Remain Fifth Class County

Governor's Failure To Act Brings Reaction

By BOB REINHARDT
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Bucks County, with a 1960 census population of 308,567, which is more than 58,000 above the requirement for a third class county, will spend another year operating under fifth class county law, following the failure of Governor David L. Lawrence to certify the new population to the County Commissioners before the year ended. Statements of reaction by Republican and Democratic politicians indicated that the failure of Bucks County to achieve the status may well be a battle ground for the Nov. 7 county elections. At that time the voters will elect a sheriff, recorder of deeds, prothonotary, district attorney and three judges, plus two jury commissioners.

Welsh Supports Lawrence
County Democratic Chieftain John T. Welsh, former county commissioner, who lost a bid for re-election in 1959, said the Bucks County Democratic Committee was opposed to advancing the county status this year and supported Governor Lawrence in his delay.

State Assemblyman Alan Williams, from his hospital bed, criticized Lawrence, Welsh and other county Democratic leaders for "sitting on their hands" instead of getting the change made.

Republican Commissioners Edward B. Boyer and John Justus Bodley at a special meeting Friday were informed that the governor would not make the change until receiving the official census figures from other counties due to change in status. The governor had received Bucks County's official population figure only because of pressure exerted by the commissioners and Congressman William S. Curtin upon U.S. Census Director Robert W. Burgess. On Friday, the commissioners still hoped, through Democratic Party channels to persuade the governor to change his mind.

In a statement charging that Boyer and Bodley had made the move to "cover up" a failure to complete the 1960 assessment appeals, Welsh stated that the Republicans wanted the change of county status now "in order to appoint an additional political drone" to the county payroll which would probably cost taxpayers an additional $50,000 to $100,000 a year.

"Boyer and Bodley are the could be made, there was a possibility of connecting with a Miami-Buenos Aires jet flight.

So while Fernandez sped to the hospital to pick up the drug and while he was driving it to the airport, the operations officer was working on making the flight connections as U.S. Customs officials did the necessary paper work to clear the staphicillin shipment out of the country.

No Time To Spare

Fernandez arrived at the airport with no time whatever to spare, but he did catch the Eastern flight, the captain of which agreed to exceed his scheduled flying time to Miami in hopes of making the jet connection.

From Philadelphia, Fernandez came home to wait. There was nothing to do now but hope.

Last night at 7 o'clock the wait ended. Another "ham" operator, this one in Uruguay, called with the news: "Little Maria is going to be all right."

The Uruguayan told Fernandez that the child's parents and her doctor were waiting at the Buenos Aires airport when the big jet arrived. He said they sped with the drug to the hospital, where it was promptly administered — just in time.

Fernandez said today that "I don't want any publicity about what we did. I just thank God that we were able to do it in time to help that poor child."

Bucks Will Remain Fifth Class County

laziest county commissioners ever elected to office in Bucks County," Welsh said.

Average Work Week

"One is busy defending himself in a bribery and extortion case and the other is occupied in practicing law. Their average work week is three hours in executive session on Monday. At $8,500 salary per year, this amounts to $50 per hour for work performed."

Welsh went on to say that the 1960 tax appeals should have been started last March instead of September. He said the board of commissioners heard and settled more than 1,000 assessment appeals in 2 1/2 months.

"But they worked five days a week and earned their salary," Welsh said. "If Boyer and Bodley would have been willing to work full time for a few months the 1,700 assessment appeals could have been settled during 1960."

Five Days a Week

"Commissioner Adolph Andrews is a full time commissioner and is willing and able to work five days a week if his Republican cohorts will set up a schedule of hearings," he said.

Welsh said the Bucks County Democratic Committee of which he is treasurer and the most effective leader, favors "the change of the status of the county from fifth to third class, but effective January 1, 1962, allowing enough time for the present inexperienced Republican Commissioners to prepare the county offices for the change.

The Democratic Party can see no reason why Bucks County should be treated differently than the other five counties in Pennsylvania whose class will change in 1962, Welsh said.

Big Hurry

"Going to third class status only means additional expenses and higher taxes to be imposed by Boyer and Bodley on the taxpayers of Bucks County. The Democrats do not know of any pressing reason for changing the class of the county in such a big hurry and agree with Gov. Lawrence that next year is soon enough."

Welsh went on to say that the Republican Administration "has made no preparation for the change from fifth to third class county. New laws and new fees would be applicable to most county row offices," Welsh said. "Yet no meetings have been held by Republican elected officials to make preparations for the transition and they don't even have available new fee schedules," he said.

Welsh said "the indifferent attitude and the refusal of Boyer and Bodley to hear the 1960 assessment appeals has jeopardized the financial structures of school districts, townships and boroughs throughout the county."

Orderly Transition

"Their failure to decide appeals makes it impossible for these municipal officers to know how much money they will have for 1961 or how much they will have to refund for 1960 in case of assessment appeals reduced. The idea of the law in providing for the governor to make the certification by October of 1961 is to give time for an orderly transition," Welsh said.

"It's time Republicans became honest with the people of Bucks County and stop blaming Governor Lawrence," he said.

Assemblyman Alan Williams said that he personally called Welsh and Gallagher on Friday and asked them to call the Governor.

Called Political Football

"The Governor has no excuse for his inaction, either legally or morally," Williams said. "This should not be a political football."

Both Williams and State Senator Marvin V. Keller attributed the Governor's delay to the fact that he is waiting to certify Bucks and six other counties all at once — perhaps in 1961.

Williams said that the other counties had "not worked as hard as we had" in pushing for third class status.

Better Service

Williams said that he, Senator Keller, Congressman Willard S. Curtin and County Commissioners Edward B. Boyer and John J. Bodley had, with other officials, "worked to furnish better service to the citizens of Bucks."

"We have badgered the Federal Census Bureau, the Department of Internal Affairs, the Attorney General, and the Governor for months and have provided them with any census information they thought necessary," Williams said.

"Now after a decision by the attorney general's office that all was in order, we find that the governor still refuses to certify Bucks as a third class county," Williams said.

Greater Bucks String Band Wins Despite Handicaps

Winner of ninth prize among the 22 string bands that marched in Philadelphia's Mummer's Parade yesterday was the Greater Bucks County entry captained by Frank Weller and dressed as Indians with pink, blue, green and white suits and head-dresses. Greater Bucks finished this high despite the fact that their costumes were not delivered until two hours before starting time and that they were the last unit to march, reaching the judges' stand well after dark.

main locations: Janney, backed upstream for two miles; Rushland, unbroken up to Doylestown and Chalfont; and at Spring Garden Mill, backed up about two and a half miles, Carson said.

In Lower Bucks, most of the trouble occurred in Langhorne Terrace as a result of the congestion at Janney Dam. Starting about 9 a.m. Sunday morning, chunks of ice and floodwaters were forced over the banks and left large blocks of ice on 10 Terrace residents' lawns. Basement of four homes on Bridle Drive were flooded and the residents were forced to move belongings.

The state highway department tried blasting some of the ice loose yesterday above the Philadelphia Suburban Water Station in Lower Southampton, but its efforts were without appreciable effect, Carson reported.

South of the Janney Dam, there was not as much danger of flooding because the ice flowed into the Delaware River without jamming.

At one time, flood water had crept 18 inches above the creek banks in the Terrace section, but had receded two and a half feet by yesterday afternoon. The worst flood stage was recorded about 9 p.m. Sunday, it was stated.

Might Move Ice

Carson said three or four days with temperatures about 50 degrees might move the ice. He reported that 1.3 inches of rain and three-tenths of an inch of snow melt was recorded to cause the jam.

He said jams of comparable size were on record, adding that the 1958 jam at Janney was almost identical to the present congestion.

2 Lower Bucks Groups Awarded Mummer's Prizes

Two Lower Bucks County groups walked off with the acclaim of the 1,600,000 crowd and a goodly share of the prize money at Philadelphia's Mummer's Parade yesterday.

The two were the Greater Bucks County String Band, which finished ninth among string bands despite the double handicap of darkness and costume trouble, and the costumes.

The Greater Bucks String Band, after working all of New Year's Day and part of yesterday morning on their costumes, drew last place in the entire parade.

They did not reach the judges' stand, at Philadelphia's City Hall, until 5:20 p.m., Frank Weller, captain, said today.

Weller said that he feels the band would have finished at least sixth instead of ninth if they had managed to parade before the judges in daylight instead of the pitch dark of 5:20.

Governor's Talk Doesn't Touch Taxes

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. David L. Lawrence asked the 1961 General Assembly today to "put aside extremes of partisanship" and join in a common effort to help solve the many problems facing Pennsylvania and its citizens.

The governor, in his "State of the Commonwealth" message before the new legislature convened, outlined a broad program which he said he would present in legislation form later, ranging from steps to combat unemployment to fighting juvenile delinquency.

The Chief Executive did not touch on the subject of taxes, or indicate whether any new levies will be needed to provide for existing or expanded state services. He said he will present the state's first annual budget for the General Fund, together with the fiscal blueprint for highways work, Jan. 16.

Asks Speedy Action

"You will, I am sure, give these basic documents of government your prompt consideration, and adopt them—with such modifications as your own judgement may direct—well in advance of the next fiscal year, which begins on June 1."

Pointing up the state's fiscal situation, however, was a report from Lawrence's Office of Administration, which said tax collections for the General Fund are more than $30 million below estimates in the first 19 months of the 1959-61 fiscal period.

The major declines were in the sales and corporate taxes.

Referring to the 1959 General Assembly which ran almost a year, with frequent extended recesses and little accomplished, the governor warned the new session "cannot be anything like the legislative travesty which died, unremembered" last Nov. 14.

Stolen Truck Abandoned

A stolen 40-foot tractor trailer loaded with miscellaneous goods including liquor and tea was abandoned on Route 413 near Route 1 last night and the case is now in the hands of the FBI.

The driver of the vehicle rushed into the woods bordering Route 413 after he had been waved off by Officer John Destolfo of the Pennell police. Destolfo had trailed the truck along Route 1 from Pennell to make a routine check for length, according to Pennell Police Chief Fred Dunkley.

The truck driver pulled off Route 1 when Destolfo signalled, he then drove a short distance on Route 413 and leaped from the cab. A search by state police and Middletown Township police failed to locate the man.

Police investigation revealed that the truck, belonging to the R.C. Motor Lines of Jacksonville, Fla., had been stolen Jan. 1 from the Line's Philadelphia Yard on MacAlester Ave. The firm's office had apparently been burglarized at the same time the truck was stolen, Dunkley reported.

Dunkley said the load was apparently intact when the truck was abandoned. No estimate of its value was available, Dunkley said, but it was sure to amount to thousands of dollars.

The case was turned over to the FBI this morning for a check on possible violation of federal statutes.

The truck pulled off Route 1 about 10:30 p.m., Chief Dunkley declared.

The two Christmas week-end safecrackings in the Township were at the Frankford Supply Co. and the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Iron Works in Edgely.

The break-in at the supermarket was discovered Sunday afternoon and the others not until Monday when Samuel Dezenhall, manager of the drug store, James Conca of the furniture store and Peter Wetherill of the lumber firm happened to drop in on business matters.

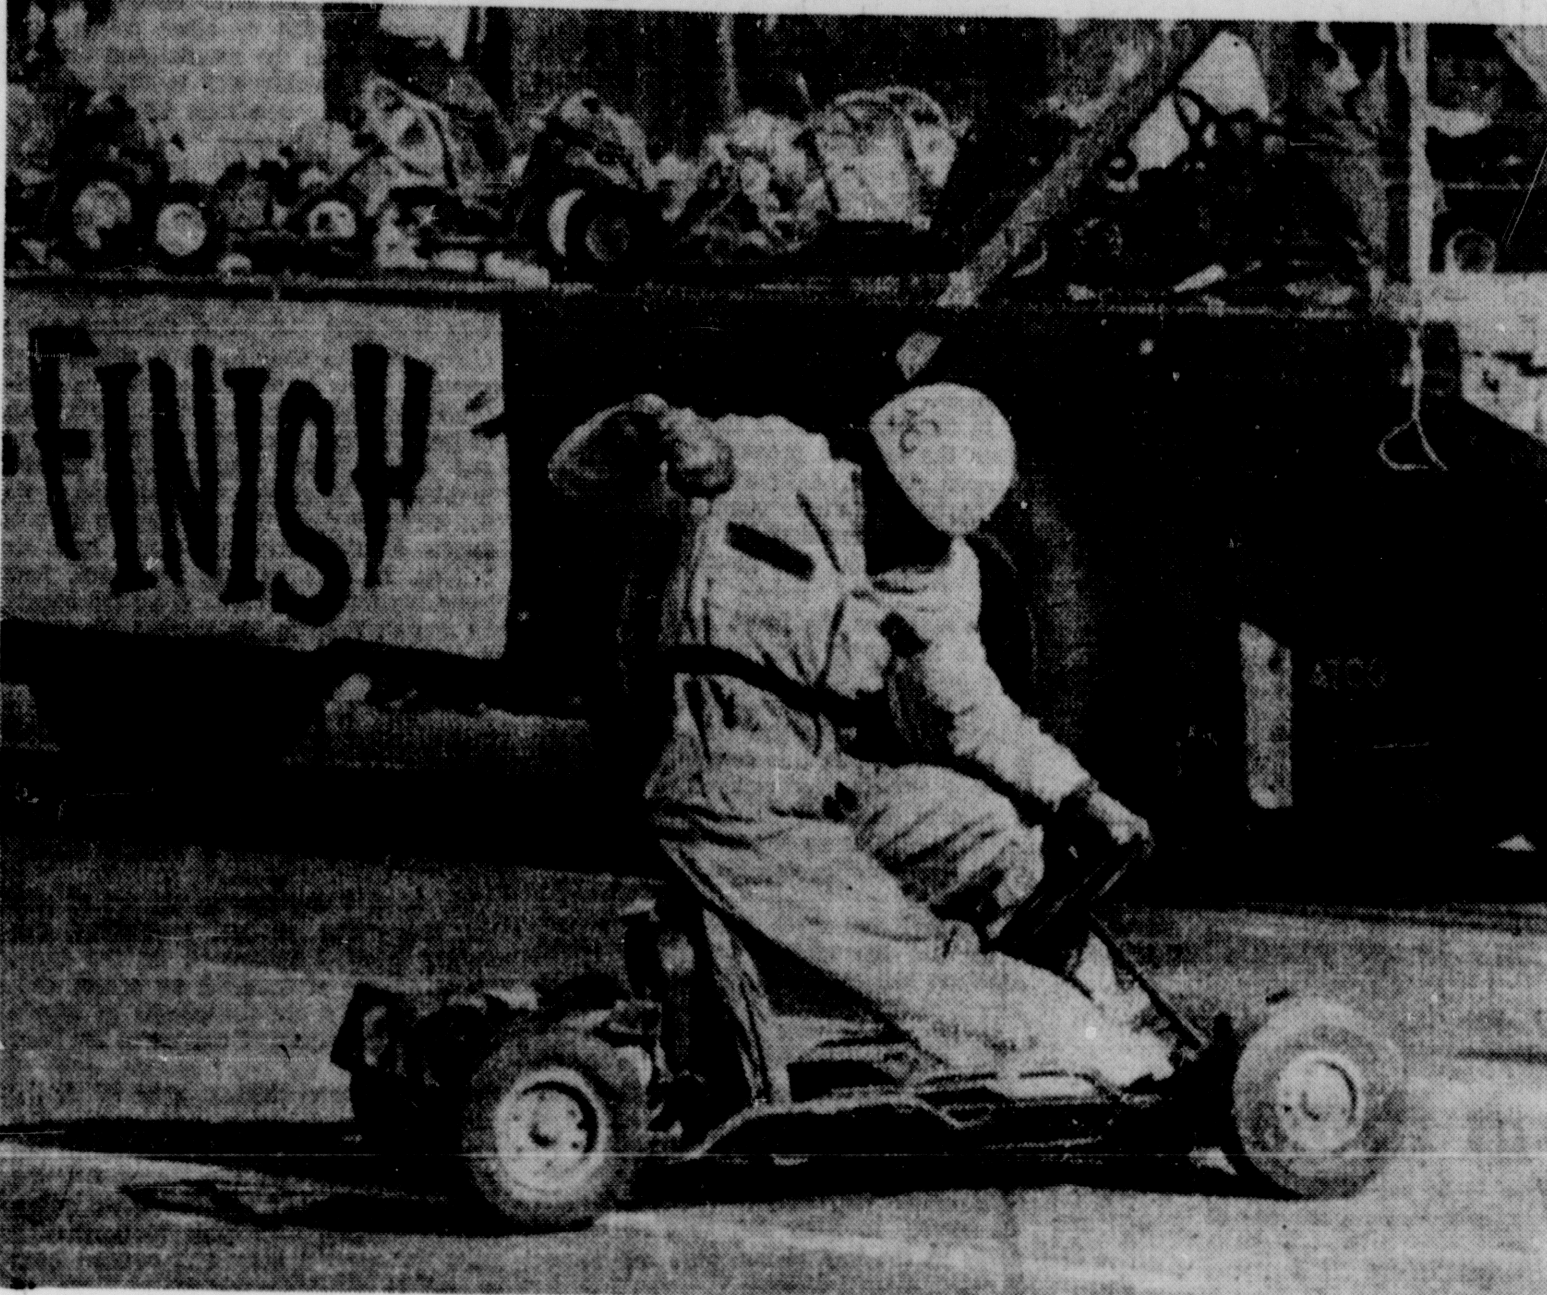

Officers Michael Mantvo and John Tortu are investigating the burglaries for Bristol Borough. Late this morning they had uncovered no concrete leads, Fara-galli said.

The Grand Prix Kart Club of America, with 28 members from Lower Bucks, was one of the prize-winning entries in the comic division of yesterday's Mummies' Parade in Philadelphia, with a float and 16 different karts zooming up and down Broad

Ambulance Crashes Going To Accident

Two persons were injured yesterday when their auto skidded and struck a pole on Street Road near Richlieu in Cornwells Heights. Neither was seriously hurt.

But a Trevese Heights Rescue Squad ambulance, speeding to the scene of the accident, skidded on the ice along Street Road, crashed into a tree and a tree stump, then despite considerable damage continued on to complete its call.

Bensalem Police said that Esther Billick, 39, of Florence, N. J., was the driver of the auto and was riding with Robert Pennock, 36, of the Liberty Bell Trailer Park, Route 1.

The two were taken by the damaged ambulance to the Lower Bucks Hospital. Miss Billick was treated for lacerations of the forehead, Pennock, for cuts of the left hand left eye and tongue. Both were released after treatment.

None of the three rescue squad members in the ambulance was hurt, Dick Siddell, the driver, said fortunately the ambulance struck the tree stump or it would surely have turned over.

In another accident on Street Road, Bensalem Police reported that a Pennsauken, N.J. woman suffered an ankle injury when her auto collided with another car under the Pennsylvania Turnpike Bridge in Trevese.

Mrs. Violet Wark, 36, was treated by her family doctor, police said. She was riding with her husband Jonathan, 39. The driver of the other vehicle was William J. Flanders of 1031 Loney St., Philadelphia.

Invites Ex-Premier Back
A Peiping broadcast reported that Souphannouvong, Laos' so-called "Red Prince," had invited neutralist ex-Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma to end his self-exile in Cambodia and return as soon as possible to "lead the royal government and the armed forces."

Souphannouvong, a half-brother to Souvanna and leader of the Communist Pathet Lao underground, also predicted victory for his Soviet-backed forces in the battle for the Southeast Asian kingdom.

President Eisenhower approved an increase in "military readiness" of U.S. forces in the Pacific following an unusual holiday meeting with his top military and diplomatic advisers in Washington.

Mounted Police With Sabers Rifle Butts Used On Brussels Mob

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—Mounted police with drawn sabers charged and drove back thousands of rock-throwing rioters attempting to march on parliament in Brussels today. Other cities in Belgium also were torn by riots and demonstrations.

While the mounted gendarmes scattered the mob screaming "Eyskens to the gallows," gendarme infantry clubbed the rioters with rifle butts.

It was the first eruption of violence in Brussels after an estimated crowd of 25,000 demonstrators marched through the heart of the capital shouting for the overthrow of Premier Gaston Eyskens government.

Earlier, thousands of rioters surged through Antwerp smashing store and office windows, attacking streetcars and buses and clashing with police.

Demonstrations erupted in other major cities throughout Belgium in a massive showdown between

Nikita Wants To Be Friend

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev pledged new Soviet willingness yesterday to improve U.S.-Soviet relations and called for an international conference to solve the Laos problem.

In a speech at a Cuban Embassy reception, Khrushchev castigated the outgoing Eisenhower administration as the "principal bulwark of international reaction."

The Soviet leader echoed Castro's charges that "aggressive U.S. monopolists" are planning to attack Cuba, saying they were trying to make it appear that Russian rocket bases for use against the United States had been established in Cuba or soon would be.

He accused the U.S. government also of aggressive actions against the "legal government of Laos" and the "legal" Lumumba government of the Congo.

Tot Locked In With Dead Mother For Six Days Struggles For Life

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three-year-old Patricia McKiernan struggled today for the life that started ebbing from her when she was locked in a bedroom for six days with her dead mother.

A policeman who broke into Mrs. McKiernan's apartment yesterday found the little blonde girl huddled near her mother's body.

The Brussels rioters defied the huge show of strength by the government which set up barbed wire fences and called in armored cars and mounted police reinforcements.

Traffic Deaths May Hit 340

By United Press International
The nation's motorists started off 1961 with a disheartening toll of traffic deaths but they apparently avoided setting a record for highway slaughter over a New Year's holiday, the National Safety Council said today.

"It certainly appears that the death toll for this New Year's weekend will fall short of the record established last year when 370 were killed," a council spokesman said.

"Nevertheless, the toll is disheartening and is a tragic way to begin a new year," he added.

A United Press International count at 11:15 a.m. EST showed these holiday fatalities:

Traffic	333
Fire	57
Miscellaneous	96
Total	491

California had the worst highway carnage with 42 deaths. Texas reported 28, Illinois 20, Wisconsin 18, Indiana 17, New York 16, Ohio 13 and Florida, Louisiana and Missouri, 11 each.

down, the coroner reported.

Police were alerted when Matthews Mahoney, Mrs. McKiernan's brother-in-law, asked them to investigate because he had been unable to reach her for two days.

Mrs. McKiernan's husband died two years ago, police said, and since then the mother has kept a very careful watch on the child.

That is why she locked the bedroom door — Patricia had a habit of wandering off and Mrs. McKiernan didn't want the little girl to hurt herself in the hallway.

Kennedy To Confer With 2 Secretaries

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy, preparing to break camp here for an important business trip in the East, today arranged conferences later this week in Washington and New York with his secretaries of state and defense.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger announced that Kennedy will confer with Defense Secretary-designate Robert S. McNamara in New York late tomorrow afternoon, shortly after Kennedy arrived in Manhattan from Palm Beach.

Kennedy will see Secretary of State-designate Dean Rusk in Washington, probably Friday night.

The President-elect planned a full schedule of conferences in New York, Washington and Boston through next Monday. He was scheduled to leave here at 2 p.m. EST Wednesday aboard a commercial jet airliner for New York, arriving at Idlewild Airport at 4:20 p.m. and going immediately to his headquarters at the Carlyle Hotel.

He has a major farm meeting scheduled at the Carlyle Thursday. Late Friday afternoon he will fly to Washington. The President-elect planned to return to New York Saturday afternoon and hold a series of meetings there Sunday.

On Monday he will fly from New York to Boston for a meeting of the overseers of Harvard University, then back to New York in the afternoon. The rest of his schedule has not been announced, but Salinger said some time ago that Kennedy would make one more trip to Palm Beach before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Earlier the President-elect named John J. McCloy, a New York banker and a Republican, as director of the United States Disarmament Commission. Other appointments were to be announced late today.

The President-elect left his Palm Beach headquarters yesterday long enough to attend the Orange Bowl football classic in Miami where he was unsuccessful in rooting Navy over Missouri.

76 Americans To Leave Cuba Tomorrow

HAVANA (UPI)—An American Embassy spokesman said today 76 staff members will leave Cuba tomorrow in compliance with Fidel Castro's demand the embassy staff be reduced to 11 persons, the same size as the Cuban Embassy in Washington.

The spokesman said Cuba was entitled by international law to determine the size of any foreign embassy on its soil. He said that of the present 87 embassy staff members here, 42 are foreign service officers and the rest consular, clerical and secretarial employees.

Leaving Cuba within the 48-hour deadline set by Castro was not expected to be much of a problem for male staff members whose wives and dependents left last September when ordered out by Washington. They shipped out the bulk of their household furniture at that time.

Local embassy officials said it would be up to Washington to decide what to do about Castro's "dare" to the U.S. to break relations. He said in his Monday speech that Cuba "did not care" if all of the embassy personnel packed and left.

The embassy demand was the only new feature of a 3-hour-and-8-minute Castro teletype following a massive display of his regime's Communist-made military might.

The bearded Cuban charged that the U.S. Embassy had a staff of more than 300 persons, "and more than 80 per cent of them are spies."

"The revolution has had much patience about this plague of agents, disguised as diplomats, who have been conspiring and implementing terrorism," Castro said.

"Let Them Go"

"The revolutionary government has decided that before 48 hours have passed the United States will have no more officials here than we have there... if they want to go, let them."

The crowd took up the cry, chanting "Let them go!"

A spokesman at the embassy said any reduction of its staff of 87 would have to be ordered from Washington.

"A great deal remains to be clarified," he said.

Rehashes Old Charges
Castro's speech was largely devoted to a rehash of his charge that the United States is planning to "invade" Cuba, presumably sometime before President Eisenhower leaves office Jan. 20.

"The world hopes that the putrid leadership of the present administration will not carry the United States to the most criminal, shameful, cowardly and repugnant of all its acts—the invasion of Cuba..." he said.

13 Whites Attend School

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Five new white students went to classes in an integrated school after the Christmas-New Year's vacation despite a death threat against a 5-year-old white girl that fell due today.

William Frantz and McDonogh 19 elementary schools reopened today after a 10-day holiday and there were 13 white students and one Negro girl in Frantz. At McDonogh 19, a white boycott remained complete.

There were only about a dozen women at Frantz school, and they did not jeer.

Mrs. Mary Sand, president of a parents' organization known as Save Our Schools (SOS), said she received a series of threats over the New Year's weekend.

Last Saturday she said a man called and said "I have just come from the West Coast to assassinate your daughter. You have exactly 72 hours to get out of the SOS."

A caller told her yesterday that "you have 24 hours to resign from the SOS or your daughter will be dead."

She said she informed federal and city authorities about the threats, a resurgence of the threats that were once commonplace in the integration struggle, but had died away before the holidays.

Bristol Borough Man Charged With Prowling

A Bristol Borough man charged with loitering and prowling at night was arrested early this morning in Bristol Township, police reported today.

The suspect was identified as Thomas R. O'Malley, 49, 243 Harrison St. The police said the arrest was made on Emille Road near the Goldensbridge section of Levittown after a resident of the area called to report a prowler at about 2:30 a.m.

O'Malley was taken before Justice of the Peace Rene Tritschler, who ordered $500 bail on the charges pending further hearing.

Ptl. Robert Lawrence made the arrest.

Lumumba's Troops Charged With Arresting Europeans

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Troops loyal to deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba are beating up and arresting Europeans in the Congo, the United Nations command said today.

A U.N. spokesman said the United Nations is interceding for the release of the Europeans who were attacked in the Lumumba-loyal Kivu Province capital of Bukavu. Those arrested include a Swiss citizen employed by the International Red Cross and a local businessman who were both seized yesterday afternoon.

Frontiers between Kivu Province and the U.N. trusteeship territory of Ruanda-Urundi were ordered closed by the provincial authorities. Belgian paratroopers are manning frontier barricades on the Ruanda-Urundi side and Congolese and U.N. Nigerian troops are guarding the Kivu side.

The United Nations command said only one U.N. company is stationed at Bukavu and that reinforcements will be dispatched there in view of the persistent disorders.

Congo "strongman" Col. Joseph Mobutu's attempt to drive Lumumba troops out of Kivu Province has failed, it was reported, even though Lumumba himself is imprisoned by Mobutu.

A United Nations source said according to reports reaching here that the fighting between Mobutu troops and Lumumba soldiers had ended in a stalemate along the border of Kivu and the Belgian protectorate of Ruanda-Urundi.

Bukavu, capital of Kivu, was

It was reported that 100 Congolese soldiers were killed in the fighting, but this was not confirmed. However, 30 of Mobutu's paratroopers were said to have been wounded and are in a hospital in Usumbura, capital of Ruanda-Urundi.

In Leopoldville, Premier-designate Joseph Ileo began preparations for an all-Congo roundtable conference designed to heal the serious rifts between the feuding political parties and to prevent the Congo from disintegrating.

President Joseph Kasavubu said in a radio speech the conference would be convened Jan. 25.

invested in additional shares. A dividend of 12 cents a share was paid in October. The monthly statements I receive from my broker show that the dividend was credited to my account as cash. It was not reinvested. What is the procedure for reinvesting dividends in this stock?

A. It's a fairly simple procedure. The instructions you gave your broker should have been sufficient.

Dominick Fund is a closed-end investment company. Its stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The company does not have an automatic arrangement through which dividends are reinvested.

However, when dividends are paid, you can always buy more stock with the dividends you receive. The easy way to do that is to order your broker to buy the shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

Because you left your stock with your broker, with instructions to do just that, it's hard to figure out why your broker didn't follow your instructions. At 12 cents a share, the total dividend on your 500 shares amounted to $60. At the time the dividend was paid, Dominick Fund stock was trading for just about $17 a share. So, he should have bought three shares for you and credited the balance of the money to your account.

When the capital-gains distribution is declared later this month, Dominick Fund will probably give you and the other shareholders the opportunity to automatically reinvest that amount. Like many other closed-end investment companies, Dominick Fund (beginning last year) has given its shareholders the right to reinvest its capital gains distributions in either cash or additional shares.

Q. About a year ago, my wife and I (ages 71 and 68) bought some U.S. Treasury bonds at a price well below the par value of the bonds. We did this because we were told that these bonds were acceptable at par value in payment of Federal estate taxes. Is this true? If so, how does it work?

A. Yes, it is probably true. Not all U.S. Treasury bond issues have this provision. But most do. Since you were advised which bonds to buy, you should have nothing to worry about. This provision is written into the "indenture" covering each Treasury bond issue. Here is roughly how it works. Suppose you die and leave an estate big enough to be subject to a Federal estate tax bill. Some part of that estate consists of some U.S. Treasury bonds with this provision.

Your estate can pay the Federal estate taxes by turning over the Treasury bonds, at full par value, even though the market value of the bonds might be less than par value. All that is necessary is that the bonds be actually owned by the "decendent at the time of death."

Belafonte, Newland, Tillstrom Take The Floor

The Singer, Director, Puppeteer Say Some Things New About TV

KUKLA, Burr and Ollie

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Visiting three important men in town . . . Harry Belafonte, relaxing after his TV special . . . John Newland, who came from Hollywood to see his dentist . . . Burr Tillstrom, doing his puppet magic at a hotel.

Belafonte seems more at peace than he has in years . . . But he's still not artistically satisfied . . . "I've got acceptance," he says, "so now I want to do a few things. I haven't yet made a movie I like; I want to do a Broadway show. And, now that I have acceptance, I can do some TV guest shots. Before, I couldn't because I had to express myself but now I can express myself on my own shows so I can take guest shots and do what they want me to do."

Still Intense
He's still the intense, eager, restless, blazing-eyed Belafonte . . . "There always are some people who want me to bend," he says, "to do things like wearing a tuxedo."

He doesn't think much of the average run of folk singers today . . . "The new wave," he calls them . . . "The songs are good, but the singers have no fire, nothing original to add" . . . He lists some exceptions including Miriam Makeba, The Chad Mitchell Trio and Odette with Harry on his new RCA album.

Only Dentist
John Newland, the tall, fair, debonair director-actor-host of Alcoa Presents . . . The only dentist he'll attend works in New York, so John plans a New York visit twice a year.

There have been 88 Alcoa Presents films shot so far . . . Newland has directed all 88 . . . "But I haven't acted and I miss that. The sponsor bought the show with the proviso — and I think he was right — that there be no recognizable actors in the cast." So he can't appear, except as host.

Housewives Proud Of Their 'Title'

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's housewives just want to be known as housewives, a copyrighted survey by Parade magazine showed.

At least 62.8 per cent of the women polled declared they were proud to be called housewives. But 25.6 per cent thought the term "homemaker" more suitable. And 7.7 per cent preferred the title of "home manager." Nearly 4 per cent of the women participating refused to commit themselves.

Without Ollie, Kukla and the other Kuklapolitans, Burr Tillstrom is a sober-sided citizen . . . He apparently reserves his wild side for his performances . . . And those performances, currently being denied the TV audiences, should come back.

"I hope to be back on TV," he says "I'm not giving it up. I'm doing some commercials which I love. That's honest work, commercials. You sell something and you get paid for it."

Things were tough for Tillstrom and his friends for a while . . . His long-time producer and friend, Beulah Zachary, was killed in a plane crash . . . "I was depressed. I couldn't get going. I even thought of giving up Kukla and Ollie. I almost bought a motel in New Mexico."

Had To Get Away

He felt he had to get away. Although he'd never driven a car ("It was a mental block") he bought a little sports car, learned to drive, took off and visited friends at an artists' colony in Michigan, and we talked about truth."

He got straightened out . . . and walked right into another bitter experience . . . "I went to Hollywood, and they promised me the moon. Oh, the things those producers promised me! Then I sat in a hotel room for days without hearing a word from them."

Big Ambition

Now his big ambition is to found a puppet theater in New York . . . "It's a shame the Iron Curtain countries are ahead of us in this — Russia has them, Poland has them, and I think there are more puppeteers per capita in Czechoslovakia than anywhere in the world."

Hints To Save Poinsettia

The poinsettia you received for Christmas will thrive indoors if a few precautions are observed, according to Abraham Rellis, instructor in Floriculture at Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture, Doylestown, who recommends placing the plant away from drafts in the home and watering it daily.

"Place the plant in a tray containing small pebbles and add enough lukewarm water to the tray each morning that the poinsettia will use up by the middle of the afternoon," he suggests.

Light and sunshine are very important for the plant and Rellis suggests that it be kept near a window which receives a few hours of sunlight each day. A window facing South is best for this purpose.

The poinsettia is a native of Mexico and requires a room temperature in the range of 65 degrees to 70 degrees Fahrenheit to thrive.
